RENO TAXI DRIVER KILLED ON ELKO HUNTING TRIP

Elko (AP) - The shot that killed a Reno taxi driver on a deer hunting expedition Monday evening may have come from one of two rifles he was carrying, Sheriff J.C. Harris said today.

The body of Lawrence Patrick Maxfield, 31, the father of three children, was found near the top of a hill in the Mountain City area of Northern Elko County Tuesday morning.

Maxfield was believed to be the first fatality of the 1963 hunting season although a California man died of a heart attack Sunday while hunting chukar partridge near Elko.

Harris said the bullet entered Maxfield's groin from a very high angle and shattered the leg. The sheriff said he doubts the bullet could have been a stray shot from another hunter's rifle, although there were many hunters in the area at the time.

The body was to be x-rayed to determine if the bullet is still in the leg. The missile could then be matched with the rifles Maxfield was carrying, the sheriff said.

A spent cartridge was in one of the rifles, but the sheriff said he couldn't be certain it was the one that caused Maxfield's death.

Maxfield had met two other members of his party who had killed a deer. He took their rifles and went on toward camp. The others arrived at camp later and found Maxfield hadn't shown up. It was too dark then to make a thorough search of the hill Maxfield was climbing, the sheriff said.

The body was found the next morning by Forest Ranger Frank Benetia and other members of Maxfield's party.

Harris said there was no indication the shooting was anything but an accident. An inquest was planned at Mountain City, 65 miles north of Elko, Tuesday evening, but Harris had not received a report. He said the corner did not have the information about the angle of the bullet Tuesday.

Maxfield is also survived by his widow, Jane.

Mountain City is within the Humboldt National Forrest about 18 miles south of the Idaho border"
